THE GOVERNMENT OF DUTCHESS COUNTY

FORWARD

During the early years of our nation's history, every citizen of intelligence and culture considered it his duty to take an active interest and part in his government. Service in public office was considered a duty and privilege. Today's trend appears to be to let government go its own way.

Believing that local government is each citizen's business, the county legislature has prepared this publication of historical sketches of your county, cities, towns, and villages to help increase your interest in and knowledge of local government. It is the hope of the legislature that this directory and accompanying historical data will create an added interest in the county of Dutchess.

This directory has been compiled carefully from the best available sources of information, and it is believed to be correct at the date of publication. It is subject to changes which occur from time to time through death, resignation, or removal, and the election or the appointment to fill such vacancies.

SHORT HISTORY OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT IN DUTCHESS COUNTY, NEW YORK

The Dutchess County tercentenary in 1983 celebrated 300 years of representative democracy in the province of New York. The seeds of local government were planted in Dutchess County in 1683 when county borders were first delineated. The seat of government has resided for almost all of those 300 years in the core area of Poughkeepsie. However, the form which government currently takes is far different than that which gave it life.

Although Dutchess was created by an act of the Colonial Assembly on November 1, 1763, its model comes from an early English prototype. Shires or earldoms dating to the 5th Century A.D. had a sheriff (shire-reeve) with judiciary and taxing powers within the districts.

The word "county" derives from the French word "comte" translating to "count", the English equivalent of earl, and evolves from the period of the Norman conquest of England around 1066.

Present county government, as does state, federal, and town, has three branches: legislative, executive, and judicial. The legislative branch is comprised of a county legislature of 25 members, representing an equal number of districts. These representatives levy taxes, make appropriations, and adopt local laws subject to executive approval.

A county executive, elected for a four-year term, has the responsibility for the day-to-day administration of the county. The chief executive appoints department heads and other executive officers, subject to confirmation by the County Legislature. The County Executive is the chief budgetary officer and has veto power over legislation.

The judicial branch includes all courts, juries, and the commissioner of jurors. The district attorney, the sheriff, and the surrogate, as elected officials, are part of this branch.

Other elected officials include the comptroller, who is responsible for accounting and auditing county finances, and the county clerk who is the official recordkeeper of the county.

What is now Dutchess County was originally controlled by the Wappinger Indians. The earliest recorded views of Dutchess County are found in Robert Juet's 1609 account of Henry Hudson's voyage. The area was not settled by Europeans until the last decade of the 17th Century. Dutchess is unique in that representative democracy has been a birthright of Dutchess County citizens from even before the first European settlers arrived.

When Nieuw Amsterdam controlled the area, colonists were, in effect, employees of the Dutch West India Company. They enjoyed few rights, not even those which would have been theirs as citizens of the Netherlands had they remained in Europe. When the British took over in 1664, there was hope that British law would be extended to the new colony. This was not to be so for nineteen years.

Only after great pressure from residents (petitions and the withholding of taxes), did the English monarchy finally accede to their wishes.

When Thomas Dongan, the Colonial Governor of New York, was sent in August of 1683, he came with instructions from his proprietor, James Stuart, Duke of York, and his King, Charles II, James' brother, to establish borders for counties, and the province as a whole, to draw agreements with the Indians, to create a representative body which would work with the governor to develop laws by which the province could be governed. Underscoring all this, was the need to placate the freeholders (landowners), who objected strenuously to paying taxes without having any decision-making powers. Messages were sent to the freeholders by sheriffs in the province to send representatives to New York City. Elections were held by voice vote. Eighteen were chosen. Seventeen eventually appeared at the Assembly.

As a result of these instructions, the first General Assembly in the history of New York was called on October 17th at Fort James in New York City. The body of law that they created has been a model for representative government in our country for federal, state, and local government ever since.

A Charter of Liberties and Privileges was published on October 30th, which included among its provisions, no taxation without representation, no quartering of troops except in time of war, an elected general assembly whose decisions took precedence over king and parliament, freedom of conscience in matters of religion, and trial by a jury of peers.

On November 1, 1683, the borders of twelve counties were delineated: Albany, Kings, Queens, Dutchess, New York, Orange, Richmond, Suffolk, Ulster, Westchester, Dukes and Cornwall, which are now part of Massachusetts and Maine respectively.

Dutchess' borders were "to be from the Bounds of Westchester on the south side of the highlands along with east side of Hudson's River as far as Roelof Jansen's Creek and Eastward into the woods twenty miles." It included part of modern-day Columbia and all of Putnam Counties.

The county was named to honor Maria Beatrice D'Este of Modena, an Italian Catholic princess and the second wife of James Stuart, Duke of York. She was to become eventually, but briefly, Queen Mary, when her husband ascended to the British throne as James II following the death of his brother Charles I. The "t" in Dutchess reflects the spelling at the time of her title, and has naught to do with the Dutch.

Although the Charter of Liberties was vetoed by the King when it finally reached London, its provisions were a part of our tradition and heritage. It is also important to note that Dutchess County citizens have pressed for the right to govern themselves consistently through the centuries, despite numerous changes in administration and boundaries. Although no freeholders inhabited our county in 1683, we had already made provision for a sheriff and a county treasurer.

One of the essential reasons for creating the counties was, as stated in the Colonial Laws of New York 1664, “revolution - the improvement of administration and the judicial system.” In 1684, the Court of Oyer and Terminer (to hear and determine) was created, and, in 1692, the Court of Common Pleas was added by the Assembly, both of which were to be presided over by a county judge.

Until 1713, Dutchess had so few citizens that it was administered from Ulster. Tradition holds that the VanKleeck House, formerly on lower Mill Street in Poughkeepsie, was the informal site of early community decision making.

In 1703, the Colonial Assembly passed a law directing counties to elect supervisors as representatives from towns or precincts to that body.

In 1714, we elected our first supervisor, a treasurer, and also a tax collector. In 1717, our first courthouse was erected on the same spot it occupies today on Main Street, which was then the King’s Highway. It contained a court and a jail cell. Even then, presumably, there were those who could not abide by community standards. In that same year, Dutchess gained a courthouse and lost a northern portion of the county, Germantown, to Albany County.

In 1719, the Colonial Assembly divided Dutchess into three districts, south, middle, and north. Boundaries continued to change over the centuries. Settlement of the Oblong Dispute in 1731 added several square miles along our eastern border with Connecticut. In 1737, seven precincts were delineated: Rhinebeck, North, Crum Elbow, Poughkeepsie, Rombout, and South. That same body of law provided for supervisors who would represent each precinct on a county board of supervisors. In effect, they were executive officers of their respective precincts and representatives to the county. The position of a clerk to serve this board was also created.

In 1746, we built a new courthouse when the original one burned. This was to happen again in 1785 and 1806. Remarkably, a great many of our early records have been saved despite these tragedies.

The present courthouse was constructed after the 1902 Board of Supervisors’ decision to raze it and replace it with a more commodious structure.

The period from 1777 through the 1780’s was a particularly exciting time for this center of government. Poughkeepsie was the capital of New York. Governor Clinton was in residence, and in 1788, the debates over the ratification of the Constitution took place in the third courthouse. It was approved by a narrow margin only when provision was made for a bill of rights, the same guarantees of freedom which the Charter of Liberties of 1683 declared.

In 1788, the creation of the nine original townships of Dutchess County were made by the General Organization Act of New York State. These included Rhinebeck, Northeast, Clinton, Washington, Amenia, Poughkeepsie, Fishkill, Beekman, and Pawling.

Throughout the years, gradual changes have produced the form of government which we support today.

Until 1966, we operated under the Board of Supervisors, in much the same way as we had from 1703. In that year, a most substantial change took place in compliance with U.S. Supreme Court ruling requiring reapportionment according to population. A county Board of Representatives, separate from town government, would represent 37 new voting districts.

In 1968, after a complete revision of the County Charter, a new form of county government was created. David Schoentag, the first elected County Executive, was sworn in that year along with 37 members of the first Board of Representatives.

Certainly not the final, but one of the latest changes came only in 1975, when the name of the governing body was changed to the County Legislature and its members then became county legislators.

A county seal featuring a sheaf of wheat, a plow, and cornstalks, adopted in 1847, is both a legal instrument of government and a symbol of the rural and beautiful land in which we live.

We have now grown to twenty towns, two cities, and several villages and hamlets with a population of more than 280,150 - an evolving community in this 21st century.

We may expect further change in a healthy society, but if we return in one hundred years, it would not be surprising to find representative county government alive and well, still in the heart of downtown Poughkeepsie.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT FUNCTIONS

Legislative

The County Legislature is the legislative branch of county government. It is composed of 25 members representing 25 districts, meeting on the second Monday of each month.

It has the power to levy taxes, adopt the county budget, make appropriations, and adopt local laws subject to approval by the county executive. It has standing committees composed of its members, as well as advisory committees and boards with citizen participation.

The chairman of the County Legislature is elected annually from and by the membership.

The clerk of the County Legislature is appointed by and serves at the pleasure of the Legislature. The duties of this office include preparation of legislative meeting minutes and assistance to the chairman in planning and conducting legislative and committee meetings.

The Board of Elections, headed by two election commissioners (one Republican and one Democrat) supervises primary, special, and general elections and all matters pertaining to elections and voter registration.

Dutchess Community College is administered by the County Legislature and the Board of Trustees of the College. The 130-acre campus is located on Pendell Road in the Town of Poughkeepsie. Its 1994 enrollment consisted of 3,040 full-time students and 3,703 part-time students.

The College provides a two-year program in liberal arts and science and engineering, both of which are preparation for transfer to four-year collegiate technical programs that prepare graduates for various types of technical and semi-professional positions in industry, business, government, and health services. Dutchess Community College is a member of and accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Its curricula are registered and approved by the New York State Department of Education. The college awards the Associate of Arts (A.A.), the Associate of Science (A.S.), and the Associate in Applied Science (A.A.S.) as established by the Board of Regents of the University of New York.

Executive

The County Executive, chief executive and administrative officer of the county, is elected for a four-year term. Among his duties are the appointment of department heads and other executive officers of the county government (subject to confirmation by the County Legislature), and the supervision of departmental administration. He is the chief budgetary officer and exercises a veto power over legislation which can be overridden only by a two-thirds vote of the Legislature. The County Executive's office is also responsible for central purchasing and personnel management.

The County Attorney, appointed by The County Executive, is the legal advisor for the county. He prepares necessary legal papers and prosecutes or defends all civil proceedings involving the county.

The Comptroller, an elected official, is the chief accounting and auditing officer of the county.

The County Clerk, elected for a four-year term, is the official registrar of the county. His office contains records of real estate transactions and other documents which must, by law, be preserved. He also heads the county Motor Vehicle Bureau.

The Commissioner of Finance is the chief fiscal officer of the county. He is the receiver of county taxes and presently responsible for the county's finances.

The Commissioner of Health is the director of the health district of the entire county. The department is responsible for health services in two areas: environmental health, enforced through the Sanitary Code; and physical health, which includes education, home care, and treatment clinics.

The Commissioner of Personnel performs the duties and exercises the powers of a municipal Civil Service Commission including recruitment, employment, and testing.

The Commissioner of Planning and development is responsible for preparation of a comprehensive plan for orderly development for the county and for providing information and technical services to local planning boards.

The Commissioner of Public Works is responsible for construction and maintenance of all county buildings and highways. He also oversees operations of the Dutchess County Airport and parks located in the County.

The Commissioner of Social Services, as an agent of the federal and state governments, administers programs for the needy, including old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the disabled and blind, home relief, Medicaid, and child welfare

The Office for the Aging is devoted to planning, coordinating, and implementing services for senior citizens, advocating for their needs, and providing information and referral.

The Solid Waste Management Department assists town governments in reducing environmental and cost factors in disposal operations through multi-town facilities. In addition to upgrading sanitary landfills, the department maintains a system for resource recovery through recycling and the recovery of heat energy present in refuse.

The Office of Computer Information Systems, under the supervision of the county executive, provides data processing and informational services to all departments and branches of county government to assist them in the management and control of services and expenditures.

The Director of Real Property Tax Service is responsible for the tax maps and their maintenance. He is the recorder of real property transfers. His office maintains the tax assessment rolls for all taxing jurisdiction in the county and is responsible for the extension of taxes for county, towns, and special districts. He assists the record keeping of county property taken for taxes and in the disposition of sale of the same.

Judicial

The Judicial branch includes all courts, grand and trial juries, district attorney, sheriff, and commissioner of jurors. The Supreme Court is organized on a district basis with Dutchess in the Ninth Judicial District. The Supreme Court has general jurisdiction in law equity. It also has concurrent jurisdiction with County Court on all criminal matters.

Two County Court judges handle criminal and civil cases under their jurisdiction. The three family court judges preside over family court.

The Surrogate Court was created in 1778 by New York State. The surrogate is elected for a six-year term. He handles all estate matters, wills, and has general supervision of property left by deceased persons.

The Sheriff is the county's chief law enforcement official. He is elected for a four-year term and serves in both a criminal and civil capacity, apprehending law violators, preserving the peace, and serving civil papers.

The Commissioner of Jurors is appointed for a four-year term. He maintains the central jury system for the county, providing trial and grand jurors for all courts serving the county.

Origin of name: Derived from the Latin word “amoena,” which means “pleasing to the eye.” Dr. Thomas Young, a settler, gave the town its name.

Amenia Township, population 4,040 and seventh in area (41.10 sq. miles) is situated in the northeastern part of the county. It is bounded on the north by North East, on the south by Dover, on the east by the Connecticut State Line, and on the west by Washington and Stanford. Part of the original Nine Partners Patent and part of Oblong, it later was known as Crum Elbow and then Charlotte. It was established as a town in 1823. It has six unincorporated hamlets: Amenias, Wassaic, Amenias Union, South Amenias, and Leedsville. Dairy farming is a major industry. Biggest streams are Ten Mile River and Wassaic Creek.

Amenias Town Board meets on the third Thursday of the month at 7:00 p.m.

Origin of name: Named after Colonel Henry Beekman's daughter, Catherine Pawling, also know as Widow Pawling.

Pawling Township, population 8,026 and fifth in area (48.10 sq. miles) is situated in the southeast corner of the county. It is bounded on the east by Connecticut, on the south by the Putnam County Line, on the west by Beekman, and on the north by Dover. Part of the original Beekman Patent, it was one of the original eight towns created in 1788, losing part of its area to Dover Township in 1807. Washington had his headquarters here and part of the Colonial Army was encamped on Quaker Hill. It was the site of the first Oblong Quaker Meeting House, which was built in 1742. The late Governor Dewey owned and operated a dairy farm in the township. Pawling Village was incorporated in 1893. Unincorporated communities are Holmes, Quaker Hill, and West Pawling.

Origin of name: Supposedly derived its name from early deeds, which included descriptions of “the Pine Plains.”

Pine Plains Township, population 2,569 and 19th in area (29.80 sq. miles) is situated in the northern part of the county up against the Columbia County line. It is bounded on the east by North East, on the south by North East and Stanford, and on the west by Milan. In 1700, it was a hunting ground for the Shekomeko Indians, and in 1740, Moravians tried to convert the Indians to Christianity, forming their first American Indian congregation in 1742. It was formed as a township from part of North East in 1823. It was a famous Aberdeen Angus cattle breeding center and remains one of the last areas in the county that is engaged in extensive dairy farming. Unincorporated hamlets are: Pine Plains, Pulvers Corners, Bethel, Mt. Ross, and Hammertown.

Origin of name: According to legend, settlers camping near the banks of the Wappinger Creek awoke one morning to see the sun glinting off the water and fish jumping. One settler remarked, "This is a pleasant valley."

Pleasant Valley Township, population 9,066 and 17th in area (32.20 sq. miles) lies in the west central part of the county. It consists of three Hamlet areas, Salt Point, Washington Hollow and is bounded on the north by Clinton, on the south by LaGrange, on the east by Poughkeepsie township and Hyde Park. Settled in part by Quakers, it was widely a Tory (British) meeting place as late as 1777. It was formed as a township from part of Clinton on January 26, 1821. Wappingers Creek flows through it providing excellent fishing, and for many years, its water was used for power in Pleasant Valley mills. Dairy and fruit farming are major industries.

The Pleasant Valley Town Board meets on the second Wednesday of the month at 7:00 p.m.

Total miles of highways: 92.49, Town 70.00, County 12.86, State 21.09. Railroad: None.

Origin of name: A north-south Indian trail along the eastern bank of the Hudson River intercepted a stream in what is now the Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery. This spot served as a resting place where mats of woven reeds were hung to form lodging. The Indians called the place Up-puqui-ipis-ing which means “reed-covered lodge by the little watering place.”

Poughkeepsie Township was the first, 1st-class town in Dutchess County. It is first in population (42,777) and 13th in area (36.68 sq. miles). It is bounded on the north by Hyde Park, on the east by Pleasant Valley and LaGrange, on the south by Wappinger, and on the west by the city of Poughkeepsie and the Hudson River. It became one of the county’s original towns on March 7, 1788. The city of Poughkeepsie was part of the town until 1854 when it became a city. Part of the village of Wappingers Falls is in the town of Poughkeepsie. Unincorporated communities are: Arlington, Fairview, Rochdale, New Hamburg, and Red Oaks Mill.

The Poughkeepsie Town Board meets on the first, second, and third Wednesday of each month at 7:00 p.m. Committee of the Whole meetings are the second Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. Total miles of highways: 186.4, Town 139.1, County 9.7, State 25.6. Railroad: Metro-North Commuter; Amtrak.

Beacon became a city in 1913 being formed by joining villages of Fishkill Landing and Matteawan in the town of Fishkill. Both of these villages were historic communities dating back to early colonial days. The city derived its name from the historic beacon fires atop the Fishkill mountains during the American Revolution to warn the Revolutionary Army of the movements of the British forces. The land comprising the city of Beacon was part of the Rombout patent, dated October 17, 1685.

The City of Beacon is situated on the east bank of the Hudson River, approximately 59 miles north of New York City. The population is 14,810 and the city comprises an area of about five square miles. The Mayor's term is four years and Council terms are two years. An expanded council includes two at-large and one for each of the city's four wards. The city administrator is an appointed position. Among its industrial plants are: Tallix, Inc., Chemprene, Dorel Hat Co., Metric Systems International, Ltd, Mechtronics, Nortrax Equipment Co., and Beacon Glass Works, Inc. In 2003, the world renowned Dia Center for the Arts opened in Beacon. Dennings Point, in Beacon, will be the site of the The Rivers and a Estuaries Research Center. The Beacon City Council meets on the first and third Monday of the month at 7:30 p.m. Railroads:
